Asian Studies: Journal of Critical Perspectives on Asia

ABOUT ASIAN STUDIES

Asian Studies: Journal of Critical Perspectives on Asia is an open-access, peer-reviewed academic journal published since 1963 by the Asian Center, University of the Philippines Diliman. Promoting original and penetrating research, it offers novel and alternative interpretations of Asian experiences, helps deepen the understanding of the region, and enlivens debates on issues affecting Asian peoples and societies.

One of the pioneering journals of its kind in Asia, Asian Studies offers a critical, multidisciplinary platform where scholars, practitioners, and activists can publish research that draws on the theories and perspectives from the social sciences, humanities, and/or cultural studies. Published twice a year, it features research articles, commentaries, reviews, literary works, and travel narratives.

The journal has previously been given a CHED accreditation of B (Acceptable - Good).

Compiled by Danae PANTANO

SUBMISSION GUIDELINES

FULL-LENGTH RESEARCH ARTICLES

- Contain between 6,000 and 10,000 words, including notes and references
- Must have a clear argument (s) and well-organized structure. This will help the reviewers/editors be thorough, helpful, fair and reasonable in their assessment.
- Provide substantial evidence (primary data and/or secondary sources as applicable) for its claims
- Explain the paper's contribution/relationship to existing debates or current literature. This will, among other things, help readers outside the paper's covered discipline(s) understand and appreciate the paper.
- Discuss/explain discipline-specific terms, theories, and frameworks in ways that can be accessible even to those new or outside a particular discipline. The journal caters to readers from various disciplines. Articles must be understood and appreciated even outside a particular discipline.
- Some common pitfalls to avoid
 - Lack of a clear, well-stated argument.
 - Unclear connection between theoretical framework/objectives on the one hand, and actual analysis on the other. In many cases, papers profess to do X but actually do Y.
 - Poor structure/flow of discussion. Use headings/subheadings.

COMMENTARIES, ESSAYS, DOCUMENTS, INTERVIEWS, RESEARCH NOTES

- Examine current issues or events that pertain to Asia from the perspective of the social sciences, humanities, and/or culture
- May include statements and transcripts of interviews
- Contain between 1,000 and 4,000 words, including notes and references

REVIEWS

Books

- Must pertain to Asia/Asian Studies, preferably published within the last three years.
- Older books can be reviewed, but its relevance to contemporary concerns should be highlighted.
- Books with a general disciplinary focus (social sciences or the humanities) can be reviewed (e.g., a book on Critical Theory or political science)
- Point out the main argument and objectives of the book
- Cite several notable ideas in the book, event, etc.
- Assess the quality and integrity of the data, the research, and the argumentation (Does the book achieve its aims, etc.?)
- Point out, if any, limitations and weaknesses of the book
- Explain how the book relates to and/or contributes to theoretical debates and to existing scholarship on the subject
- Consist of 800 to 1000 words
- Include bibliographic information

Novels, Plays, or Anthologies of Poems

- Pertain to Asian society and culture
- Provide a brief background of the author
- Provide a short summary of the book/theme (This story is about....)
- Relate the novel's theme to real-life, contemporary issues and problems in the relevant country or region
- Cite specific episodes/examples to illustrate one's argument(s).
- Comprise 800 to 1,000 words, including any references.
- Older, premodern works can be reviewed, but it is preferred that its relevance to contemporary concerns be highlighted.

Exhibits / Artworks

- Pertain to Asian society and culture
- Provide a brief background of the artist

- Relate the art work's theme to real-life, contemporary issues and problems in the relevant country or region

Movie / TV / Stage Plays

- Describe what the movie is about: plot overview and themes
- Relate it to real-life contemporary issues affecting Asia(ns)
- Cite specific scenes to illustrate one's argument(s).
- Comprise between 800 and 1,000 words, including any references

TRAVEL NARRATIVES

- Describe road-less-traveled type of destinations or events in Asia, OR
- Show familiar, common venues in a new light or discuss obscure features of familiar venues
- Comment on how the venue or event relates to theoretical and practical issues in and about Asia
- Must not simply describe what was seen/heard/felt; it should reflect, analyze, etc.
- Include one photograph
- Run between 800 and 1,000 words. Longer travel narratives may be considered under the commentary section.

LITERARY SECTION: POEMS AND SHORT FICTION

- Must have an Asian topic or theme
- Poems should be written in English or in any Asian language, along with English translation (Authors are solely responsible for the accuracy and integrity of the translation.)
- Short fiction Should be no more than 4,000 words and written in English
- All pages of literary submissions should include the name, address and email address of the author. No more than three poems or one piece of short fiction should be submitted at any one time. Authors should wait for a response before submitting future work and must provide a glossary of non-English words whose meaning cannot be discerned by context.

CITATION AND FORMATTING REQUIREMENTS

- Asian Studies uses the author-date system of latest edition of The Chicago Manual of Style. Authors should provide a list of references and can use end notes.
- For paraphrased content, place in quotation marks any of the words/phrases used by the original. Also, if the paper simply uses synonyms but retains original sentence structure, it might as well just quote the original.
- Secure permission to reproduce any copyrighted content before submission. Indicate such permissions by writing an “Acknowledgement” at the end of the article prior to the notes and references section.
- Indicate source and copyright of photos/figures in the captions.
- Indicate funding (if any) in the acknowledgment section. If there are none, say so.

- Text
 - Size 12, Times New Roman
 - MS Word (.Doc file)
 - 1.5 spacing

- Tables and illustrations:
 - Place and label all illustrations, tables, etc., at the designated sections within the text.
 - Use high-resolution JPEG format for pictures.
 - If the paper has been approved for publication, the tables must be submitted in hi-resolution images (PNG or JPG format)
 - Submit hi-resolution soft copies of illustrations as separate attachments
 - The editorial board reserves the right to remove illustrations or limit their number. The author can choose which image(s) to keep or remove.

SUBMITTING MANUSCRIPTS via SCHOLARONE

Asian Studies uses ScholarOne to process submissions. Authors must create/use an account in Clarivate's ScholarOne to submit a manuscript to the journal. First-time users will have to provide:

1. Full name, and title/position
2. Affiliation and address
3. Email address, username, and password

Take note and/or prepare the following:

- Blind-review¹ copy of full-length article (please designate it as "Main Document" when submitting in ScholarOne)
- Separate title page (please designate as "Title Page" when submitting in ScholarOne)
- Type of Manuscript (article, review, etc.)
- Title and Running Head
- Abstract (200 words)
- Cover Letter
- Declaration of Funding (Yes or No).
- List of funders (if yes)
- Suggested reviewers (optional) and/or reviewers you don't want Asian Studies to contact (optional). For the latter case, explain why in the cover letter.
- Number of words of your manuscript
- Declaration of previous submission to Asian Studies
- Confirmation of originality
- Declaration of compliance with ethical guidelines
- Declaration of conflict of interest
- Confirmation of submission of Blind-Review copy*
- Serve as Reviewer? (Yes or No)

SUBMITTING MANUSCRIPTS via SCHOLARONE

Once you have these on hand, kindly proceed to the ScholarOne portal. Go to "Author" and select "Start New Submission." If you have questions/objections/concerns, please email asianstudies@up.edu.ph

Notes:

² By submitting your manuscript, you attest that it is an original work, and has never been published in print and/or electronic form; that required permissions have been secured; that the manuscript is not under consideration in another publication; and that references and citations have been done with due diligence and in good faith.

REVIEW/POLICY PROCEDURES

- Commentaries, reviews, poems, and travel narratives are subject only to a general review by the editorial staff/editors, who may then offer suggestions for revision and the like.
- Full-length research articles are subject to a preliminary assessment to determine if it proceeds to peer review.
- Once a full-length research article passes the preliminary assessment, it is subject to a double-blind peer review system. The paper will be reviewed by at least two scholars. They have three weeks to complete their evaluation, dated from the day the manuscript is sent to them.
- If both reviews conflict, the editors can decide whether to accept or reject the manuscript, and/or seek the evaluation of a third reviewer.
- Authors can respond to, argue against reviewers' comments, and provide counterarguments and justifications, whose merits (or otherwise) will be assessed by the editors. The editors will then decide accordingly how the author is to proceed with revisions.
- The reviewers' comments are consolidated with the copyeditors'/editorial staff's/editors' comments. This integration aims to streamline the revision process and minimize the back-and-forth between author and editors, who seek to be as thorough as possible in their comments. Kindly note, however, that some issues may crop up, paradoxically, only when the manuscript begins to improve and take better shape.
- Authors are generally given two major attempts to revise their paper. If there are no substantial improvements—whether it has addressed the comments—after the second attempt, the editors may reject the paper altogether. Once the paper is approved for publication, the authors and editors can still work together and keep revising and copyediting as necessary (a sentence to be added here, a point to be clarified there, etc).
- Authors are advised to remove any information in the manuscripts that can point to their identity in any way. This includes references to their own work, as well as document properties (username, etc.).

PROCESS FLOWS

For Article Reviews

1. Subject article to plagiarism check
2. Determine whether article is suitable to be peer-reviewed
3. Invite at least three reviewers (see Appendices 1 to 3 for email templates)
4. Secure at least two reviewers' comments
5. If both recommend publication, revisions are sent to the author
 - Editorial staff/editor in chief can make additional comments to streamline revision process.
6. Author sends first revision at a date determined by the editorial staff.
7. Determine if revised version addresses the reviewers' comments. If not, one more attempt is given, or further revisions are given.
8. Revisions may continue as long as the article shows substantial improvement with each version, although the editors and editorial staff are as thorough as possible with their comments and minimize the back-and-forth.
9. If approved, article proceeds to copyediting and layouting.
10. Authors are generally given two major attempts to revise their paper. If there are no substantial improvements—whether it has addressed the comments—after the second attempt, the editors may reject the paper altogether. Revisions may continue as long as the article shows substantial improvement with each version, although the editors and editorial staff are as thorough as possible with their comments and minimize the back-and-forth.
11. Even if the paper is approved for publication, the authors and editors can still work together and keep revising and copyediting as necessary (a sentence to be added here, a point to be clarified there, etc).
